For more than two hundred years, free and open competition has been a hallmark of the American experience. Our judicial system protects society from unfair business practices and ensures a fair and level playing field for all competitors in the market place.

Microsoft Corporation has engaged in documented monopolistic practices which unfairly limit free and open competition in the market place. Alternative solutions, such as Red Hat Corporations offer to provide their Linux products free of charge to school systems should be reviewed and considered by the Department of Justice prior to enforcement of the antitrust settlement consent decree.

America is a free and open society. In my opinion, American business should reflect the values of its citizens.
